THAT WATER SUPPLY.

Never a day passes that an Amarillo man does not have the water supply problem thrown up to him. A pioneer resident this week said that he had known Amarillo for 30 years and that it seemed the city had always had a water problem. He is just as anxious as any Amarillo man to see the city grow and have an adequate water supply.

For several years the water situation has become of vital importance. The subject is continually coming to the front, especially in the summer time. People have frequently been asked to conserve water, sprinkle lawns as little as possible, turn off water from lawns when there is a fire alarm and do many other annoying little things.

It is only natural that the people should gradually become aroused to the necessity of water.
It is perfectly right that they should look to the city commissioner to solve the water problem, for that body is logically the head of the city government.

A few months ago the city commissioner permitted the City Light & Water Co. to raise the rates from 50 cents to 75 cents a thousand gallons for water. That was done with the sanction of the Board of City Development, an organization which no one doubts is for the better interests of Amarillo. An audit was made of the company's books and the figures showed that no extension of the water service could be made with the income of a few months ago.

So the rate increase was given to enable the company to put down a few more wells with the expectation that the people would receive more water. Probably all the citizens have received about all the water they desire, but they are doing it at a rate that will never permit a city to grow.

Amarillo lawns cannot be grown on this 75 cent water. A trip over the city will show that many substantial citizens are letting their lawns die. Their only reason is the inability to pay so much for water to sprinkle lawns.

The people are looking forward to an adequate water supply.
They want plenty of water at a price that will enable lawns and gardens and even permit the children to have an occasional water fight during the summer. They also want a commercial rate that will not penalize manufacturing institutions that would like to come here.

Reiterating a statement made a few days ago, the city commissioner is being weighed in the balance. People are expecting a practical solution of the water problem and it must come before the financial election next spring.

WICHITA FALLS SPIRIT.

The Texas-Oklahoma fair will be held at Wichita Falls, September 30 to October 4. The management has been hard at work for many weeks and reports indicate that the fair will be an unqualified success.

The spirit of Wichita Falls has been in promoting the fair from the start, as worthy of com-

THOUGHTS FOR TODAY

They shall not labor in vain, nor bring forth for trouble.—Isaiah 55:10.
Labor endures rest; and both together are absolutely necessary for the proper enjoyment of human existence.—Robert Burns.

by the cities in which there may not be the proper amount of courage in these unsettled business times. The business men evidently are behind the Wichita Falls fair and that is what it takes to make an enterprise succeed.

Wichita Falls is going after the exhibits for the fair. North Texas and Southern Oklahoma will be well represented in the displays as well as other sections and states. The Panhandle exchanges are filled with stories of representatives going to various counties and asking for representations. It takes work to put over a fair. The personal touch by a direct solicitation for an exhibit instead of a formal and stereotyped letter must be getting results.

The Wichita Falls fair will grow in importance year after year if the present determined spirit is carried on. More and more exhibits will be sent from the Panhandle to Wichita Falls if that city continues its courteous and effective manner in going after displays.

Wichita Falls has grown largely because of wealth that was thrust upon it three or four years ago. It will grow still more in the future because it has a group of leaders who are continually alive to the development of the trade territory. Wichita Falls is receiving national recognition today from its irrigation project, while a few months ago one could hear only of that city as an oil center. Agriculture is the basis of civilization, we are told, and when a great city like Wichita Falls realizes its importance, then it will create good will and enjoy still more wholesome growth.

Amarillo at one time was the center of a great regional fair.
When the war came on, the fair was permitted to die and there has not been enough pulling together of business men to assure its success again. The counties over the Panhandle are firm believers in a Panhandle-Plains fair to be held at Amarillo. That was shown last year when the proposition was seriously discussed.
Amarillo will have another great regional fair when the business and professional men realize its importance from a civic standpoint and also are willing to back up their beliefs with some finances.

DAUGHERTY'S IMPEACH- MENT.

Plans of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to impeach Attorney General Daugherty will be a fizzle. He had just as well devote his time to more constructive work in behalf of union labor. He will have no opportunity to impeach Mr. Daugherty for his actions in the rail strike.

A motion was made in the house that impeachment proceedings be brought against Mr. Daugherty.
The resolution was killed so quick that Congressman Keller, the author, did not realize what was happening. Whether one agrees with Mr. Daugherty's action in the strike is another matter. A movement to impeach him because of his acts will not avail anything.

PANHANDLE PRESS

C. O. C. SECRETARIA.
There never was a time when Clarendon needed the good offices of a superintendent, twelve cylinder secretary of the chamber of commerce as this fall.—Clarendon News.

A chamber of commerce without a secretary is just like an automobile without a steering wheel. You just can't get anywhere. A city the size of Clarendon cannot do much civic work with a volunteer secretary or one of small caliber. The life of a chamber of commerce hinges around the secretary. He is the one that keeps communications on their feet and makes their work. A few towns in the Panhandle have secretaries who attempt to do the work along with their regular position.
You don't hear much from these places in civic affairs. Business people and those who truly contribute to the welfare of a chamber of commerce will give their money more gladly if there is a good man to look after things.
The need of a chamber of commerce secretary was never more demonstrated than with the Panhandle Plains chamber of commerce. That organization decided a few months without a secretary.
Clarendon did not care to contribute because there was no visible secretary, although the office duties were handled satisfactorily. The people wanted and demanded a working head. Then they saw their money given to the organization. More secretaries have been named for the Panhandle Plains chamber of commerce and it has for a better confidence of the people and it has secured a secretary again. Clarendon and the future, as it has in the past, that a good chamber of commerce secretary is a valuable asset.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The brilliant member of the English Secret Service and the courageous rescuer of MME. DE SEVENIE and her guests from robbery by Paris Apaches had preferred to be known as ANDRE DUCHEMIN.
It was under this name that he had met in the hotel with highwaymen, the beautiful American widow, EVE DE MONTAIGNE. Then, in the chateau de Montclair, where Du-chemin was a dinner guest, there came that strange morning party seeking refuge from the storm: the American,
WHITTAKER MONK; his secretary,
PRINCE; the latter's brother, JULIE; and the
COUNT and COUNTESS DE
LORENES.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

The Apache Strikes Back DUCHESMIN took back with him to Nant, that night, food in plenty for thought, together with a notion that he had better resign himself to stop on indefinitely at the Grand Hotel de l'Univers and ... see what he should see.

That fatality on which he had so bitterly reflected, had him now fairly by the heels. Impossible—and the more so the longer he pondered it—to credit to mere coincidence the innuendoes uttered at the chateau by Mr. Monk and his party.
Nor there had been malice in that, Duchemin was satisfied. If not some farther purpose which perplexed the most patient scrutiny.

Now motion without incentive is unthinkable. But Duchemin searched his memory in vain for anything he could have said or done to make anybody desire to discredit him in the sight of the ladies of the Chateau de Montclair. Still the attempt so to do had been unmistakable: the Lone Wolf had been lugged into the conversation literally by his legendary ears.

Surely, one would think, that pastoral prowler of pre-war Paris had been so long dead and buried even the most ghastly gossip should respect his poor remains and not disturb them merely to demonstrate that the past can never wholly die!
And he, then, some enemy of old hidden under one of those alien surfaces?

An excellent visual memory reviewed successively the physical characteristics of Monsieur Monk, Prinze and de Lorenès, and their chauffeur Jaques, with the upshot that Duchemin could have sworn that he had never before known any of them.

And Madame de Montclair? In respect of that the memory again drew a blank, but remained unsatisfied.
When one thought of her name remote, faded, faded, faded, it was not a blank, but a blank, but a blank, it was not a blank, but a blank, but a blank.

Getting aside then the theory of positive personal animus, what other reason could there be for the effort to falsify upon Duchemin's memory of identity with the lone wolf? A chance coincidence, it was not and the probability suggested was connected with the mysterious about person of Madame de Montclair.
And then, again, to all this, there was the character of the public man.

He had the good in the heart of a few men who regarded him as the best of men, the best of men, the best of men.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Burtin

HEE HAW RIDES WITH THE TWINS

Nancy and Nick rode away from the Dingle Dell on Hee Haw.
Hee Haw was the dokey the old wiard had given them to ride, he they could hunt for the lost wand of the Fairy Queen.

But really Hee Haw wasn't a donkey at all. He was Flapdoodle, the very fairy the twins were searching for and who had caused all the mischief.

But Nancy and Nick didn't know that of course.
"Gid up," said Nick, giving the donkey a poke.
Hee Haw switched his tail and trotted away.

Inside of him he was laughing and laughing. Hee Haw was. He thought what a good joke it was for the twins to be searching for him everywhere, and here they were riding right on his back.

"I'll soon lose them," he said. "I'll take them first to the thorny patch and pretend to be frightened and drop them off. Then I'll run away. They'll never get out of that, and that will be the end of them."

After while, not so very long, Hee Haw turned into a side path.

"Where are you going?" called Nick.
"Just here," answered Hee Haw.

Suddenly he stood up on his hind legs and Nancy and Nick roared off his back like two ripe plums dropping off a tree.

The first thing they knew, Hee Haw was jumping a fence and tearing off down the road.

The twins got up and looked around.
"Oh!" cried Nancy, "look at the thorns."

"Yes," answered Nick, and thistles too. This is a fine place to bring us."

THE WEATHER

Amarillo and vicinity: Saturday unsettled, cooler.

West Texas: Saturday partly cloudy, unsettled in Panhandle, cooler Panhandle north portion Saturday.

Eastern New Mexico: Generally fair west, unsettled east portion Saturday, cooler extreme east portion Saturday.

Synopsis of Weather Conditions.

The rain area continues to dominate light local showers; elsewhere there appears to be an entire the Gulf States by absence of precipitation; stations from which reports are received, except the region of western Kansas. The indications are for cooler weather throughout the Panhandle.

ENROLLMENT AT CLARENDON LARGE

CLARENDON, Sept. 15.—With the close of registration today more than four hundred students had matriculated in Clarendon College. The student body represents all parts of the Panhandle, from West Texas and as well Western Oklahoma, New Mexico and Oklahoma. With the great number of the later registrations all expectations of the college were met, and the new group was to be one of the best the institution has yet had. The senior class is a large one, and there will be something like four hundred and one matriculating this fall.

This is the twenty-sixth annual session of the college, and it is of course a matter of some importance. The college has been steadily growing, and the first time experienced some growth in its four hundred of the student body.
